SEX DIFFERENCES AND LEGAL SCHOOL ENTRANCE AGE

Frank R. Pauly, Director of Research*
Tulsa, Oklahoma, Public Schools

Many children are not ready for the traditional first grade of public school when they are chronologically approaching six years of age. Particularly is this true of boys. Boys usually develop in nearly all respects more slowly than girls. Much of the research in sex differences indicates that girls should be admitted at least three or more months younger than boys; or, better, that the entering age for boys should be raised three or more months.

Studies over a ten-year period in the Tulsa schools indicate that there is need for different legal entering ages for boys and girls. However, it is freely granted that admission, ideally, should be on the basis of a comprehensive physical and mental test program thus providing for those frequent exceptions which will inevitably occur. However, this is not practicable in a large school system. The state legislature is probably the only body in a position to make a legal differentiation.

Some Implications

1. If this slower maturation rate for boys is accepted, all educational and mental age norms published should be revised to provide norms for each sex.
2. In all likelihood the mental hygiene of many immature boys and their parents will be improved if a differential entering age can be established. There will be less frustration for boys, their parents, and their teachers if this slower development is recognized and provided for thru extension of kindergarten or otherwise.
3. State legislatures should raise the legal entering age for boys and in turn provide custodial care, if needed, in some less expensive and more satisfying way educationally. (This might save taxpayers $150,000,000 to $300,000,000

POPULAR EDUCATION DOCUMENT No. 1.

WHAT SHALL WE STUDY?

BY WM. T. HARRIS,
SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

HAT shall we teach in our Public Schools—or what shall our children study? This is the most important question that demands the attention of the educator. Without a clear idea of its true answer, we may “eddy round and round” and never come to any consistent system or reach any practical success.

Whether we take the end of education to be discipline, or a filling of the memory, a training of the senses or of the reason, a fitting for business or a general culture—it is certain that our system of education will show what our theoretical view is. Taking for granted that no subject is of more importance to the educator, we hazard a few remarks on the American idea of popular education and the course of study rendered necessary thereby.

Without dogmatizing on the relative value of National ideas, it is sufficient to characterize them: The Oriental forms of society fix the status of the individual far more definitely than do the Western. If you are a Sudra, you were destined to the basest of employments before you were born. Your neighbor, the Brahmin, was foreordained to a blessed life. The institution of civil society in India is a vast web of fate which overshadows the individual, and prevents the mobility which is thought essential to humanity in Europe. Yet this mobility is not realized any where in Europe to the degree that it is in America.

Whereas, in Europe generally, the ruling class is hereditary to a greater or less extent, there is also a separation of other classes—the proletary below, and the property-holding middle classes above them. The tendency is to prepare the people by early education to remain in the same class—the proletarian's children to be proletarians still—the landholder's children to be landholders again. Mobility of classes is not encouraged to any great extent; but far more now than formerly. Since the French Revolution this has especially increased in France, and all over
